

UNIVERSITY of GLASGOW

Faculty of Arts

Welcome to the Faculty of Arts

The departments which make up the Faculty represent a spread of subjects which originated with the foundation of the University in 1451. At that time it offered teaching to undergraduates and postgraduates in Latin, Greek, Moral Philosophy, Logic, Mathematics and Natural Philosophy. Today, as one of the largest Faculties in the University, the Faculty prides itself on the breadth of choice offered by its undergraduate degrees and the flexibility it is able to offer; we have the only Department of Scottish Literature in the world, a thriving Department of Celtic and a strong Scottish History section. In addition, the Faculty has strengths in English Literature, English Language, History, Philosophy, Classics, Theology and Religious Studies, Archaeology, Music, History of Art, Theatre Studies, Film & Television Studies, and Humanities Computing.

Our research investigates important intellectual and cultural issues via the study of languages, literatures, history, philosophy and the visual and performing arts; it holds several large research grants to fund cutting-edge projects across this spectrum. We have the outstanding resources of our University library with its special collections, the holdings of the Hunterian Museum and Art Gallery, and the benefit of many contacts in a vibrant musical and visual culture in the city. Our wide range of postgraduate taught courses attract students from the UK and worldwide; they benefit from contact with staff of internationally recognised calibre. The Faculty has a lively postgraduate population in its Graduate School, which enjoys excellent relations with the Arts and Humanities Research Council, particularly for its research training provision.

Our graduates have an impressive employment record, and have progressed to significant appointments in a broad range of professional fields.

We are a busy and internationally attractive Faculty; we hope that you will enjoy the further discoveries to be made in these pages.
