

Illuminations

The Critical Theory Web Site

Illuminations: The Critical Theory Website is a WWW research resource for those interested in the Critical Theory project. Firmly based in Frankfurt School thought, this site maintains a collection of articles, excerpts, and chapters from many contemporary writers of and about Critical Theory. Additional submissions from graduate students and others are also available, as are links to other websites and related sources.

CLASSICS

NEXT GENERATION

Forward

Back

If you are interested in contributing to this continuous and growing project, created by Douglas Brown and Douglas Kellner, please contact Douglas Kellner at The University of Texas at Austin or Byron Hawk at The University of Texas at Arlington. We welcome and encourage your participation in this ongoing project, but in order to meet our own expectations and to adhere to academic, theoretical, and scholarly protocol all submissions must be addressed to one of the contributors listed above. Furthermore, all submissions must reside on the server and, thus, become a permanent part of the Illuminations project. Your cooperation is greatly appreciated, and, with your help, we look forward to extending and expanding this project.

This site best viewed with Netscape Navigator
Download Netscape Now

Member of the Internet Link Exchange

Contact Site Manager

Last Updated December 1998