Regina Abrami is a Senior Fellow at Harvard Business School and Faculty Chair of the Immersion Experience Program (IXP), a field-based learning opportunity allowing MBA students to extend leading ideas in management theory to real world situations. She is also on the executive committee of Harvard University's Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies and a Faculty Associate of the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs.

Her primary area of expertise is comparative political economy. Her current research is focused in three areas: (1) the politics of industrial strategy; (2) the impact of historical institutional differences on political economic development; and (3) doing business in emerging markets, focusing especially on China and Vietnam where she has lived and conducted research for many years.
