Dr. Wang Duanyong is associate professor at Shanghai International Studies University, China. Prof. Wang received his Ph.D. in Economics from Wuhan University in 2007. He has served in enterprises, universities and think tanks for more than 15 years. His current research focuses on Chinese investment in mining sector and energy sector in sub-Saharan African countries.

In 2008, Dr. Wang founded the Center for Chinese Overseas Interests Studies affiliated to Shanghai International Studies University. Since then, he has been leading a team to conduct research projects on China’s overseas direct investment and protection to China’s overseas citizens. They have been trying to map the detailed distribution of Chinese investment items in selected countries by applying geographic information system

(GIS) approaches based on public information and first-hand information collected by themselves. The aim of their workings intends to investigate and analyze the social and environmental implications of those projects to the local communities. In 2011, granted by Boell Foundation, Dr. Wang and his colleague Mr. ZHAO PEI finished a fieldwork on China's investment in mining sector in Katanga Province, the D.R. Congo.
