FADERTIC – On-line support for rural development agents

Agric. Econ. – Czech, 51 (2005): 41-46

The FADERTIC project – open on-line support for Rural Development Agents (RDA) based on the use of latest information and communication technologies (ICT) is a project in frame of the EU Leonardo da Vinci II program. Three authors of this text form the Czech partner team. It aims at providing alternative means for the continuous training of Rural Development Agents, more specifically a self-training and guidance system. The project is focused on developing and checking a product (web on-line training tool) and making it available to rural development agents. The philosophy and structure of Fadertic project is shown in the paper together with selected output previews of web based training tool.

Keywords:

Leonardo da Vinci program, distance training, training tutor, guidance system, on-line training tool, strategic planning, project emergence and leading, cross – disciplinary behaviours and skills
