The article describes the c process, structural change competitiveness in the Ge sector over the last decad descriptive analysis aims t developments at the indivi the food chain and to identify the challenges the sector will face in the upcoming years. The study is based mainly on the data published by the German Statistical Office and the evaluation of the primary and secondary literature sources. The study shows that small and medium-sized enterprises were sustainable in the long term, while the large ones have p
