CONGRESS ROLE IN THE FORMULATION OF AMERICAN

TRADE POLICY: HISTORY AND THE POST COLD WAR

CHARACTERISTICSJin Canrong(7)

Trade policy is one of the everpresent issues in U.S. foreign policy. Since the Constitution of the United States conferred the power of governing foreign tra

to Congress, it has, consequently, exerted greater influence on trade policy than on security policy. There are three aspects of Congress' role in trade policy:

first, as one of the major decision makers; second, as a supreme policy supervisor; and third, as the major promoter for the "politicization" of trade issues.

This article focuses on Congress' decision making capacity, including the ingredients of the decision making power, Congress' position in the overall decision making structure of U.S. trade, and new features in the post-Cold War Congressional decision power over trade.

PROBING U.S. ECONOMIC STATUS AND THE POSSIBILITY

OF A "SOFT-LANDING" Huang Weiping (31)

The discussion of U.S. "high-tech bubbles" has been underway in recent years on a global scale. Under economic laws no country can escape business cycles to maintain eternal prosperity. Recession is bound to emerge sooner or later despite the information industry and bioengineering, which have just manifested their vitality and might bring about a new round of economic prosperity for the United States. While American people's understanding of economic laws deepens and their diffusion of advanced technologies continues, U S economy may slip down. A s oft landin g will possibly emerge in the early 21st century, and a new cycle of U.S. econ om

y may recur then.

MULTICULTURALISM: ITS ESSENCE, ORIGINS,

PRACTICE, AND LIMITATIONSWang Xi (44)

The article outlines the evolution of multiculturalism as an ideology and prac ti

ce in the United States since the 1960s and examines its wide ranging applica ti ons to pedagogy, historical approach, critical theory, and reform ideology. Re co gnizing the profound changes brought about by multiculturalism, the article ar gu

es that the impact of multiculturalism both as a theory and as a practice is l im

ited because of its innate weaknesses.

CAUSES FOR THE EMERGENCE AND DEVELOPMENT OF

AMERICA S ANTICOMMUNISMLiu Jianfei (81)

Anticommunism in America has its deep and complicated root causes. In addition t o the antagonism between capitalism and socialism, the politico cultural back gr ound peculiar to America is also one of the major root causes. In the eyes of ma instream American society, communism is the biggest un American phenomenon. Americans have a tradition of antiradicalism and communism is seen as the most radical revolution in human history. They regard communism as the major impediment to the realization of "manifest destiny" that they believe in. Furthermore, religious impacts and mistakes made by socialist countries in their foreign policies constitute the impelling factors causing anti communism in the United States.

CIVIL RIGHTS MOVEMENT AND THE RISE OF POLITICAL

INFLUENCE OF BLACK SOUTHERNERS

Ji Hong
(109)

The American South has undergone during the last four decades unprecedented changes, of which the most important ones are the rise of voting rate of black people and the increase of elected black officials. The civil rights movement aroused the political consciousness of black people in the South. The Voting Right Act of 1965 ended the century long history of hampering blacks in the South from voting. Thus with voting right in their hands the Black started their change from being inferior citizens to participants in political affairs.
