Title: Certain particularities regarding the rights of the underage offenders

Author(s): Laura Roxana Popoviciu;

Keywords: underage offenders, children rights, reform justice

Abstract:

The underage offenders have certain particularities that derive from the fact that they are considered to have a reduced gravity of the crime, their penal responsibility being conditioned by their psychological and physical state of the minor at different stages of the underage. In the conjuncture in which the juvenile delinquency represents a complex and serious social phenomenon, that within its negative consequences affects both infants and the society as a whole, the underage offenders problem and their rights ought to be taken under consideration, mainly because many times they are confronted with serious breaking of their rights. As a matter of fact, the children rights are established by a series of international documents that give a very important role to the protection of families and children, the Romanian legislation being aligned to these requests by a reform in justice, after Romania's adhesion to the European Union.
