

Main body of the document containing dense text, likely a list of items or a detailed report.

Main body of the document containing dense, repetitive text, likely a list or index of items.

Section of the document with more text, including some bolded words and structured lists.

Final section of the document, containing text and possibly a footer or summary.