The 2010 International Conference on Computational and Information Sciences (ICCIS2010) will be held in Chengdu, China, from December 17 to 19, 2010. Chengdu, the capital of Sichuan Province, lies in the hinterland of the Chengdu Plain, in central Sichuan. Chengdu enjoys a long history. The 2010 International Conference on Computational and Information Sciences (ICCIS2010) aims at bringing researchers in the areas of computational and information sciences to exchange new ideas and to explore new ground. The goal of the conference is to push the application of modern computing technologies to science, engineering, and information technologies. Following the success of ICCIS2004, ICCIS2010 conference will consist of invited keynote presentations and contributed presentations of latest developments in computational and information sciences.

Publications:

All accepted papers are expected to be published by IEEE CPS in the IEEE conference proceedings and be included in IEEE Xplore. All papers accepted will be indexed by EI and ISTP. The proceedings in CD will be available to the attendees during the conference. After the conference, selected papers will be considered for publication as special issues in several journals. Guest editors and suggested journals are welcome. Those papers will go through the standard rigorous refereeing procedure established by the individual journals. Additional page charges by the journals are the responsibility of the authors.
