BBQ Index shows shrinking cattle herds driving beef and BBQ costs

This Fourth of July, Americans will pay more for their backyard barbecues than ever before. The inaugural 2014 Rabobank BBQ Index examines the composition of a ten-person barbecue and how rising commodity prices have impacted the cost over the years, showing an overall price increase from $ 51.90 in 2004 to $55.62 during the financial crisis in 2007, to a total of $66.82 in 2014.

Livestock futures turned volatile Wednesday morning

Rainy forecasts may be limiting corn losses.

ADSA joins in Coalition Letter

Tuesday April 1, 2014

ADSA joined with 87 other science and agricultural organizations in urging support for Section 1433 Continuing Animal Health and Disease, Food Security, and Stewardship Research, Education and Extension Programs in the fiscal year 2015 Agriculture Appropriations bill. This will support a new competitive research grants mechanism to address critical priorities in food security, one health and stewardship.

Although the outlook for the fall corn harvest looks very favorable, recent rainfall in the western Corn Belt has concerns about excessive moisture and flooding.

Livestock futures diverged sharply from crop markets Tuesday

Favorable conditions again weighed on the crop markets. Monday's Crop Progress report indicated that corn growing conditions are still very good by historical standards, which matched expectations.
