New Online Weldon School of Biomedical Engineering Master's Degree Program

Engineering Professional Education, a division within the Purdue College of Engineering, is proud to announce the launch of a new online Biomedical Engineering concentration available in the interdisciplinary MSE (Master of Science in Engineering) and MS (Master of Science) degree programs.

This concentration has unique emphasis on practical regulatory affairs, making it especially valuable to engineers and technical professionals working in industry. Two BME courses (Regulatory Compliance for Biomedical Devices and Tissue Engineering) will be offered this fall and additional courses will become available in subsequent semesters. Registration for fall classes starts July 6.

Continuing the Weldon School's tradition of biomedical leadership, the online BME concentration delivers high quality graduate-level opportunities to professionals located anywhere in the world.
