Health Policy and Planning blends such individual specialities as epidemiology, health and development economics, management and social policy, planning and social anthropology into a lively academic mix that constantly stimulates and keeps readers abreast of modern international health care.

Health Policy and Planning has an optional open-access policy. For a fee, authors can request that their paper be made open-access - reduced charges will apply to authors in low and middle income countries. The Editors also select one article to be made freely accessible in each issue. View the current issue.
