Unfinished Modernity: Core Values of Library Profession in the Information Age

Yu Liangzhi ( Library Science Department Nankai University, Tianjin 300071 )

Abstract: This paper is a contribution to the "Library Profession's Core Competence and Values" discussion launched by Library Journal in its 3rd issue of 2005. The paper contests that the core values of the world library profession consist of the profession's advocacy for reason and knowledge, commitment to equality of knowledge access, and pursuit for maximum use of knowledge. The paper further discusses the challenges to these values by the information society ideology and calls for library professionals to protect their core values in the information age.
